GARY HOLMES

LOCAL 933 PRESIDENT

Congratulations to all of the newly elected officers and bargaining reps. The Membership has spoken as to who they want to represent them for the next three years. On behalf of the Executive Board and myself we thank you for believing in us. While continuing to move our local union forward, we are grateful and honored for the opportunity to serve all of our active units and retirees.

Our Election Committee does an outstanding job to always ensure that we have a fair and honest election. It's not an easy job. It becomes stressful and thankless at times. I truly respect what they do.

The retiree chapters have started their monthly meetings and planned activities again. It's always good to see them.

On April 25th our Ryder unit maintained and secured numerous gains after ratifying another 3-year contract. Thanks to all of our hardworking union brothers and sisters for their support. I would like to thank our Servicing Rep. Chris McTaggart, Chairman James Kemp and Financial Secretary Scott Lawson for being at the bargaining table with me in obtaining a new CBA. Good Job!

On April 21st, the following International Representatives came to visit the UAW Local 933 Leadership: Adam Stevenson, Assistant Director, UAW Aerospace Department; John Eblin, Administrative Assistant, UAW Heavy Truck Department; Dave Snyder, Assistant Director, UAW Heavy Truck Department; Ed Zirkle, International Representative, UAW Heavy Truck Department. It was a good meeting and they made it clear that they are there to support us and our Membership. Building new relationships and networking is essential in being successful. This is a great resource to have; especially, with a contract year coming up at Allison Transmission. Thanks to Region 2B Servicing Rep. Chris McTaggart, Rolls-Royce Chairperson John Snow and the Zone Committeemen from Rolls-Royce and Allison Transmission for attending this meeting.

I look forward to leading this local union again for another three years and I'm so blessed to have myself surrounded by so many good people. Your Executive Board, "The Leadership Team", will continue their commitment in moving the Membership in a positive direction. Your input and suggestions are always welcome. Thank you again for your continued support.

With several Holidays coming upon us, Memorial Day, Father's Day, Juneteenth and Fourth of July, the entire Executive Board and myself wish you, your family and friends, a safe summer. Enjoy!

In Solidarity,

Gary Holmes, President
UAW Local 933

Recently, Director Wayne Blanchard stopped by UAW Local 933. During a Rolls-Royce plant tour visited with President Gary Holmes, Chairman John Snow, the Rolls-Royce Bargaining Committee, and all the elected and appointed representatives.

UNION DEMOCRACY IN TODAY'S LABOR MOVEMENT

Any discussion of union democracy should begin with the obvious: labor unions are the most important vehicle to defend workers' rights in the world. The world would be a far better place if every worker who wanted to could, without fear, join a labor union.

Unions negotiate better wages and benefits than comparable non-union workers receive. Unions bring some element of democracy into an otherwise undemocratic workplace where the boss has unlimited power. A union grievance procedure brings a version of the Bill of Rights' sixth amendment into the workplace—a worker accused of doing something wrong has due process rights.

Unions advocate values in the workplace such as justice, fairness, safety, and respect. Polls show that around half of American workers would join a union if they were free to do so—four and a half times the number who are currently members. Over the past century, unions have fought for every U.S. law benefitting workers.

As well, unions are one of the most democratic institutions in America, and unions are among the most interracial organizations in America.

Yet American unions are not perfect models of democracy. While all unions have constitutions and by-laws that outline democratic procedures, there is a tremendous range of democracy within the labor movement. The bulk of labor unions are somewhere on a spectrum between completely democratic, member-driven, transparent unions, and bureaucratic, top-down, secretive unions with no member involvement.

Democracy is a goal. Democracy is not something a union achieves, congratulates itself, and then forgets about. Democracy, in a country or in a labor union, is not achieved by just passing good laws or rules. No set of rules, no constitution, no by-laws, and no elections guarantee union democracy. Democracy is achieved by continual struggle to maintain it and to expand it. Democracy is maintained by the people holding elected leaders accountable for their actions.

There is a dark side to being in power, whether as an elected politician or as an elected union officer. Power can be an addiction. It is easy to slowly begin to abuse your power. It is easy to fall into a way of thinking that your old self would have thought unthinkable.

While America prides itself on being a democratic country, the political culture in America leans far more heavily toward the benefits of holding power than to the ideals of democracy. In both the Republican and Democratic parties, few top leaders have unbending principles. If a leader of the other party does something, it will be vigorously denounced. If a leader of your own party does the same thing, it will be adamantly defended. The primary goal of leaders of both parties is to win power and to keep power. There is little concern about ethics or morality in how they achieve that goal.

Lest readers think this is overwhelmingly a Republican perspective, think about this example. In 2008 during the Democratic presidential primaries, the Democratic Party did not count the Michigan vote, as that state's leaders had broken party rules when they scheduled the date of their state's primary election. Candidate Hillary Clinton said the Michigan primary vote did not mean anything because most candidates were not on the ballot.

Then later, when the race with Barack Obama for delegate votes was neck-and-neck, she demanded that Michigan's delegate votes be counted because she had gotten the most votes. A key campaign spokesperson, Senator Chuck Schumer of New York, explained Clinton's reversal matter-of-factly on NBC's Meet the Press: "Each candidate, of course, takes the position that benefits them at the moment."

That is a disgraceful admission. Schumer was admitting that politicians do not speak the truth or stand for principle. Rather, they change their position when it serves their purposes.

Union leaders are not immune to the reality that we are all immersed in the deep culture of corruption in American politics. Union leaders are not unsusceptible to the paradigm in American politics that all that matters is winning and keeping power. Few labor leaders would publicly say what former Teamsters president Dave Beck did: “Unions are big business. Why should truck drivers and bottle washers be allowed to make big decisions affecting union policy? Would any corporation allow it?” Or the equally disturbing, anti-democratic words of Leon Davis, the founding president of SEIU 1199, now called SEIU United Healthcare Workers East: “The membership can only be a sounding board, even the delegates...they can’t make decisions... The idea of wisdom emanating from the bottom is full of shit, not because they are stupid but because they have a job which is not running the union and knowing all the intricate business about it.” Yet some variant of that idea exists within many unions. That is, the idea that the members are too stupid to run a large organization. Instead, only skilled, experienced leaders can do it.

Another argument offered by some union officials is that workers do not really care about democracy, but just want more money in their wallets. Former Service Employees (SEIU) president Andy Stern wrote: “Workers want...strength and a voice, not some purist, intellectual, historical, mythical, democracy.”

The only ones who care about union democracy, according to this argument, are “radicals” like those around the reform group Labor Notes, and university-based labor historians and labor studies professors. But the truth is that union democracy translates into stronger unions, which lead to better contracts, which means more money in workers’ wallets. Management knows the extent of member involvement in a union when it sits down at the bargaining table.

This paper will address threats to union democracy. Some are well known, such as out-and-out corruption. Some, such as elected union officials living lives of luxury and a lack of transparency in union finances, are somewhat known but often brushed aside as not relevant. Others are less discussed but just as important, such as bullying and manipulating the members.

This paper addresses union democracy at the level of union membership, executive board, bargaining committee, and union committee meetings. It is beyond the scope of this paper to delve into the equally important role of union democracy in the workplace, including workers organizing contract campaigns, marches on the boss, strikes, and other job actions that build power at work by building workplace activism and worker-leaders who confront employers. {By Steven K. Ashby, Professor of Labor Studies, Chicago Labor Education Program, School of Labor and Employment Relations, University of Illinois at Champaign-Urbana}

FUTURE
UAW LEADERSHIP

There was a referendum held in the Fall of 2021 to help decide if UAW members would use Delegates from each Local to represent their vote or each member would have their own opportunity to vote for International Officers. The outcome of the vote was the UAW International Officers would no longer be elected by Convention Delegates. The offices to be filled during the election will be International President, International Secretary-Treasurer, (3) International Vice Presidents and (9) Regional Directors. All members will be mailed ballots beginning in October 2022. It is important members have their correct mailing address on file at their Local Union Hall. All UAW members who are in good standing as of October 31, 2022 are eligible to vote. Once a member has received their ballot, the ballot must be mailed and received by November 28, 2022. It has been recommended that voting ballots be placed in return mail no later than November 18, 2022. To make it easier to understand, please check the new website under the Constitutional Convention for Official Rules for the 2022 International Officer Election. Also, see the adjacent page for important dates and deadlines as it pertains to the election of our UAW International Officers.

In closing, please be aware that your vote counts. As UAW President Ray Curry stated, “Our actions or inactions will dictate the future of our Union”. With all the members we have in the UAW, only 14% voted for the referendum. Of the 14% that voted, 8% made the decision for us. I challenge our members to step up and get involved. Please study the candidates and cast your vote. Look for information on the new website for UAW represented Rolls-Royce employees at www.uaw933rr.com

RON LONG

RETIREE
CHAIRMAN

The birds are chirping and the flowers are blooming. April showers bring May flowers and hopefully not snow. It has been on the cold side for a very long time. April was a great month to host a meeting, finally. We had a better than expected attendance. We did manage to provide snacks for everyone. Thanks to our staff for going above and beyond the call of duty and assuring everyone had a sandwich. This does pinpoint a concern. We depend on you to provide us with up-to-date information when you change your telephone number or address. Please keep in touch with the office so that you get the most up to date information.

The calendar is now on the month of May and I think that is a good name for a month. It may be warm, may be cold or just may be anything. I vote for warm weather and lots of sun. May is also vote month. Brothers and sisters, your vote is valuable. We have unfortunately been embroiled in a voting controversy since our previous president couldn't deal with the fact that he lost.

At our May meeting you will cast your vote for who you want to run our local, from President to Board Members-at-Large. A rare thing happened in as much as the top positions are unchallenged and that rarely occurs. So, I can congratulate President elect Gary Holmes for three years. The retirees look forward to working with him as we move forward.

While we are chatting about voting and elections, I would like to express my view on what I see in the political world. I am an active Democrat and not ashamed to say so. Yes, I may be a little bias but I am union through and through and that has a deep influence on my political convictions.

I see a two-party system in Indiana and one party has control over the other.

One party is conservatives and I feel that they are deeply committed to social engineering. They use centralized planning to manage social change and regulate the future of development and behavior of a society. One example, in Florida you can't say GAY. It is against the law...and in Texas you can't read a text that mentions CRT (critical race theory). That limits freedom of speech to engineer the community that fits their rules of Law.

The other party is progressive, and I feel they are committed to social justice for all. And, in terms of the distribution of wealth, opportunity, and privileges within a society, individuality gives way to the struggle for social justice – “a safeguard against possible hardship or adversity; a safety net for workers who lose their jobs.”

Progressives protect Social Security and Medicare, food stamps and unemployment benefits and an environmentally safe zone.

Let's talk about Social Security and how the conservatives are always chipping away at the program. For years, Conservatives have sought to weaken Social Security by cutting benefits, reducing the number of people who are eligible and putting your money into the hands of greedy Wall Street investors.

Medicare is in trouble as well from attack. Our previous president under the guidance of Jared Kushner launched a pilot program to test a “direct contraction model” that allows Wall Street backed startups and private insurance giants to take over portions of Medicare. This would be a significant shift from traditional Medicare direct reimbursements of providers.

So, when November arrives all that is asked of you is to remember the issues and which ones best serve you. If Social Security and Medicare are important to you then the Progressives are your best ally as opposed to Conservatives that want to eliminate social justice programs.

Thanks for reading this article and I trust that we all stand together in Solidarity. Hope to see you all at the May meeting.

In Solidarity,
Ron Long
Retiree Chapter Chairman, Local 933
